Dr. H. Walter Bonney

The body of Dr. H. Walter Bonney of Utica, N. Y., was brought here for burial in the West Northfield cemetery on Monday, August 20. He died Friday, August 17, after an illness of two months. He was a teacher of music and well known organist, and had served as dean of music at Jamestown college. He was born September 3, 1869 in Hamilton, N. Y., and followed with musical studies. However, in late years he followed a study of ophthalmology and otology by a practice in New York and finally in Utica. He married in September, 1895, Mabel Lyman, daughter of Elliott I. and Alice Lyman of this town, and was a frequent visitor here. Mrs. J. Lee Bolton is a sister of Mrs. Bonney, and Mrs. Bonney is her guest for a few days. Dr. Bonney was a member of the Congregational church and a former officer of the Utica Optical association. He was founder of the Bonney school of music. Dr. Robert A. Watson officiated at the burial service.

Strongly Evangelistic

The message of evangelism, that Christ died to save sinners, was brought forcefully to the fore in the rally gathering held in the Congregational church Tuesday evening, August 21, and sponsored by a committee of the Rustic Ridge Association, members of many denominations and church groups. Rev. W. H. Bollman introduced "Jack" Wyrzten the director and broadcaster of the Word of Life hour and its Fellowship, Inc. The evangelistic spirit prevailed and Mr. Wyrzten with his associates, at once won the confidence and interest of his audience. The large audience which filled the church joined in the singing of the old hymns and the musical group of the Salvation Army camp rendered several selections before the meeting opened. The message was by Mr. Wyrzten and delivered in earnestness and candor, and a large number decided to begin the Christian life. Many of those in the audience were from Brattleboro, Greenfield, Bernardston and South Vernon, with a good representation from the Salvation Army camp and from the summer residents. Jack Wyrzten has modernized the old fashioned evangelistic meetings and become a leader of the new youth movement. His career will be full of promise as it progresses. It is hoped that his introduc-

The War Is Over

The war is over and in this community as elsewhere was celebrated with enthusiasm. The two holidays were taken advantage of by everyone and many of our citizens planned special events. Flags were flown throughout the community. Churches and individual groups held prayer meetings of thanksgiving and a parade marched through our streets proclaiming victory. The parade was participated in by members of several organizations and town departments. Returning from the march a meeting was held in the town hall. Our young men in the various services will soon be returning home and they should be accorded a real welcome with a promise of full employment.
